Spirits List

Enotria&Coe

In what can be referred to as a golden age for premium spirits, the E&C 2019 Spirits List is fittingly our most exciting, extensive and comprehensive portfolio yet. Never before has such a vast variety of products been available, with the UK representing an enthralling shop window for the global market, boasting the very best of the best in the hospitality and cocktail scene, which are home to a wealth of both domestically crafted and imported spirits.

Because of growing consumer interest, education and a willingness to spend more and trade up, premiumisation and craft continue to be buzzwords within the sector, driving interest and value increases across the board. Gin continues to show no signs of respite and continues to be the unrivalled spirit of the moment. The unlikely, but profound, second coming of this traditional spirit – with inextricable British roots – has been nothing short of phenomenal, with the category reinventing itself via an array of coloured, flavoured, regional and atypical contemporary expressions. Offering over 300 different products, our gin range is a delicious force to be reckoned with, and we're proud to exclusively distribute one of the very best modern examples available – the excellent Pink Pepper Gin from the ever-innovative team at Audemus Spirits, along with the rest of the range from these dynamic distillers. With new products and brands entering the arena at a prolific rate, so too tastes and trends are moving fast, seeing the unexpected emergence of some more unusual categories, which we've chosen to champion as market leaders. Representing one of our 2019 Focus Areas, the low/no movement is certainly a category causing waves, as discerning drinkers jump on the temperance bandwagon and drink less, or not at all. Including products covering a range of styles & serve types, consumers now have a growing wealth of sophisticated options available.

Vermouth is another one to watch as drinkers look for lighter, refreshing long drinks, so another of our very own agency brands, Regal Rouge Vermouth, is in a position to enjoy some deserved success this year. In the same vein, we're expecting our exclusive agency brand Copenhagen Sparkling Tea to excite and delight palates in a unique way. Mezcal has been talked up within the trade for some time now, but never before has there been such variety of products and styles in the UK, which we've embraced by creating an extended offer celebrating the diversity, complexity and intrigue of this complex and exciting spirit.

Whiskey too, from further afield, is gaining an increasing appreciation and following, as age statement single Malt Scotch and Japanese products are becoming increasingly sought after and rare to find. Sweden, Australia, Thailand and even England are all countries showing signs of great potential with some truly exciting new releases which offer unexpected but rewarding sipping. Finally, for the first time, we are pleased to unveil an E&C craft beer portfolio – showcasing an exciting and eclectic range of products and breweries from the UK and beyond.

Whilst we are in prime position to grow and drive these exciting categories and brands, we look forward to evolving the range over the course of the year, bringing in the best new products, and remaining at the cutting edge of innovation and trends as a market-leading force in the UK drinks universe.

Enjoying success and popularity like no other spirits category at present, there's not much to say about gin that hasn't already been said. With little sign of slowing, and an increasingly innovative, dynamic and unusual range of brands available, consumers are gaining the confidence to experiment and choose new, different brands.

We provide the most exciting expressions available on the market today and champion lesser-known regional expressions from every part of the UK, along with the industry stalwarts. While some speculate that the gin bubble is on the point of bursting, we think there is still plenty of life within the category, and plenty more excitement and surprises to come as gin as we know it further evolves.

Gin

Here at E&C we believe we have the very BEST OF THE BEST
the UK scene has to offer, spanning a range of 300+ BRANDS

Ranging from classic London Dry styles, through to ultra-contemporary gins and also exotically flavoured expressions, our portfolio boasts a gin for every occasion & palate from all around the world.

With little sign of respite, and an increasingly innovative, dynamic and unusual range of brands available, consumers are becoming increasingly confident to experiment and chose unknown brands from the increased selection of brands commonly found on backbars around the UK

With new distilleries popping up on what seems like a weekly basis, E&C are at the forefront of finding the newest and most exciting brands on the market, and continue to champion lesser-known regional expressions from every part of the uk, along with the industry's bigger names.

While some speculate that the gin bubble is on the point of bursting, we think there is still plenty of life within the category, and plenty more excitement and surprises to come as gin as we know it further evolves.

Stylistic differentiation and a more sophisticated audience and drinks scene are helping to paint a colourful picture of diversity within gin lists, retail shelves and cocktail menus, which is continuing to keep things fresh for an engaged and captive audience.

Along with flavoured gins, an ocean of Cask Aged and Old Tom variants continue to offer a point of difference, showcasing gin in a different light.

Discover our FARM BORN Gin

Tequila & Mezcal

After winning the hearts (and palates) of America, the Mezcal trend is arriving on our shores and is set to make a splash. In production, roasting is used to impart varying levels of smokiness, though the vegetal notes of distilled agave remain. Intricate flavour patterns mean this versatile spirit lends itself to some delectable food pairings, from traditional Mexican dishes to smoked meat and cheese.

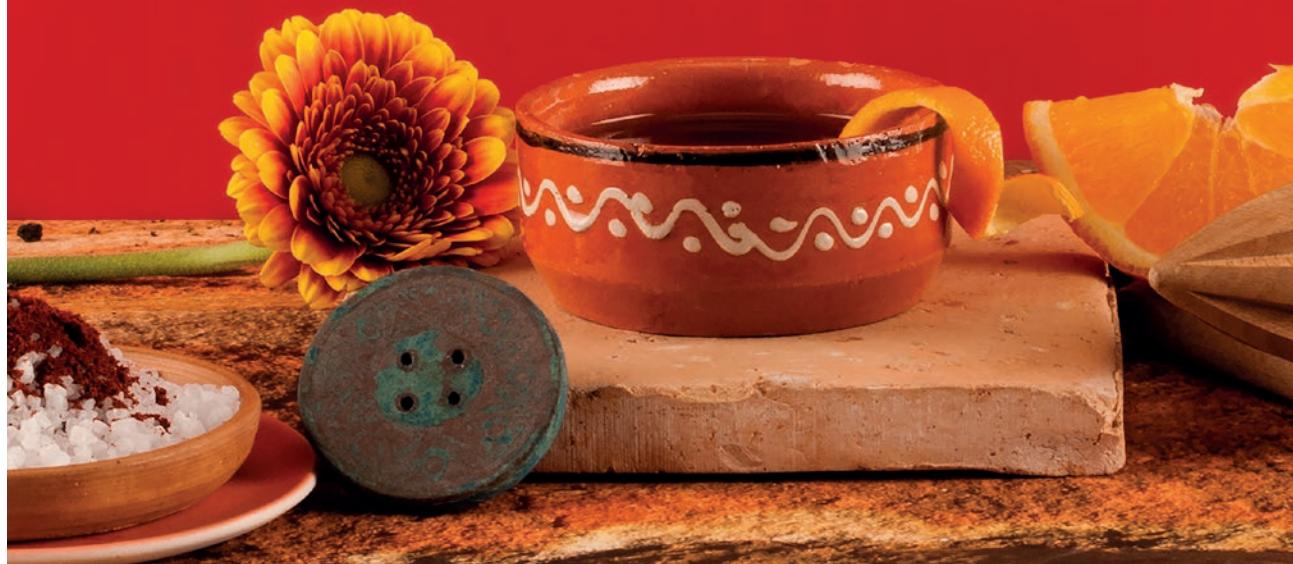

Mezcal isn't the only lesser-known Mexican spirit: Raicilla and the herbaceous Sotol also offer exciting alternatives to the traditional Tequila. The more premium expressions show their brilliance when served straight up, while entry-level variations make a unique base for several cocktails. There is a mini Mezcal revolution taking place, and we're excited to see what's next for this burgeoning category.

Mezcal

Sometimes referred to as tequila's lesser known little sister,
MEZCAL IS AN INCREDIBLY EXCITING AND DIVERSE CATEGORY OF SPIRITS

that has exploded stateside and is now starting to make an impact and is grabbing attention on these shores.

The diversity of agave species and varying methods of production make for a myriad of flavour profiles and styles ranging from lifted & floral through to earthy & umami.

The use of roasting as opposed to steaming (as used in tequila production) gives mezcal a varying level of smokiness (not dissimilar to a peated whisky) but yet possessing the vegetal notes of distilled agave.

The influence of terroir on the flavour the agave imparts, producing complex and intricate differences from expression to expression, make mezcal the...

MOST WINE-LIKE SPIRIT

Mezcal may not be the "next gin" in terms of popularity and reach, but there is certainly a mini-revolution taking place, and we expect to see much more from this burgeoning category.

Mezcal's "friends" include other unique lesser-known Mexican spirits, including the softer Raicilla and herbaceous Sotol. Both are much rarer to encounter, but offer exciting spirit alternatives of what Mexico has to offer.

Production style is authentic and artisanal and Geographical region denomination is large (potential to grow to meet demand).

Food matching shouldn't be overlooked with this versatile spirit. It's complex nature and savoury notes lend it to some deliciously compatible food pairing options – ranging from traditional Mexican dishes through to smoked meat and cheese.

SMALL MARKET SHARE BUT GROWING

When it comes to serving mezcal, best option is straight up (minus any worms) for the more sophisticated premium expressions, but more entry level mezcal can also be used as a unique base to a number of classic - & increasingly - contemporary cocktails found in some of the world's best bars.

IN 2016
MEXICO'S

was its third-largest alcoholic export, behind beer and tequila.

Vodka: the mighty Zeus of spirits, the Pangea of distilling, a product that stands head and shoulders above all others in terms of consumer popularity and global sales, yet one perhaps on the cusp of revolution (again). For too long dismissed or taken for granted by much of the on and off trade, the category is going through something of a revolution at present.

From outstandingly delicate, subtle expressions, through to fuller-bodied releases bursting with flavour, a new wave of smaller brands and craft distillers are now making the trade take note of vodka in all its many pure forms. The flavoured category is transforming too, with intricately flavoured styles offering some inspired white spirit alternatives to gin. We're quietly confident that we'll soon be talking about vodkas from across the globe with the same appreciation and language that we are applying to the once-maligned Tequila. As ranges and expectations expand across all spirits, could we see a niche opening for sipping vodkas, or for the American standard of 'vodka, rocks, twist' evolve in the crucibles of our country's bar scene?

Moskovskaya®

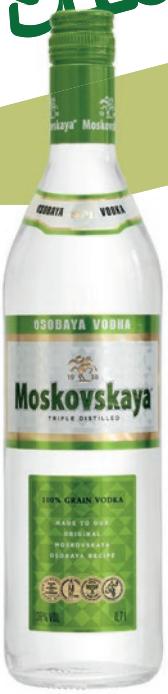

"A CREAMINESS AND A LIGHTNESS OF TOUCH MAKES THIS A TRULY ACCESSIBLE SPIRIT; EXCEPTIONALLY GOOD VALUE." (The Independent)

NO FUSS, JUST VODKA

At Moskovskaya, we believe if you've got a good thing going, why change it! That's why our recipe has remained unchanged since 1938.

As one of the oldest Russian vodka brands, we proudly produce according to the classic Russian methods, triple-distilling our liquid to ensure a pure, strong spirit - after all, three time's a charm.

Once filtered using fine quartz, activated charcoal and then quartz once more, the end product displays a satisfying depth of character, gentle bready flavour and characteristically peppery finish.

Whisky

Craft is the key word when talking about the new frontier of global whiskey production. Whiskeys beyond Scotch represent some of the most exciting areas of spirits growth today, with producers from Ireland, Japan, Australia and Europe creating much excitement within the market. An increasingly innovative and imaginative approach from a confident new breed of distillers has resulted in a younger, more dynamic audience keen to explore and experiment.

In America and Canada too, the same individual, crafted approach that changed the beer market has emerged in the whiskey industry. The large distillers of Bourbon and Rye whiskeys are watching small-batch distillers create demand and engage their customers so that this category represents some of the most diverse and keenly debated styles of whiskey.

Scotch Whisky

Contrary to its traditional image, the Scotch Whisky scene is a hotbed of excitement right now. In keeping with the pace set by the likes of Japan and Ireland, the Scots are becoming increasingly experimental and adventurous with the use of casks they employ, and the styles they release.

Home to the world's most prestigious and admired names, whisky remains synonymous with Scotland and remains its number one world export. Boasting a huge stylistic assortment, which ranges from the light and grassy lowland releases through to the peat-fuelled smoke-bombs of Islay. A complex and multi-faceted category to become familiar with, today's industry is a juxtaposition of familiar classics with exciting upstarts. Whether enjoyed mixed in a cocktail, topped up with soda in a highball serve, sipped neat or paired with food, Scotch Whisky is far more versatile than you might expect.

Japanese Whisky

Whilst there may be echoes of the Scottish distillers, Japanese whisky has comprehensively established its own unique identity and style over the past decade. Demand and recognition has soared of late, and allocations of these highly-prized releases are highly sought after.

A facet that runs through the entirety of this category is innovation; the experimental side of this spirit is explored to the full, with varying peating levels, alternative production techniques and the use of native mizunara Japanese oak. This isn't to the detriment of quality however – this category has been winning awards since the turn of the millennium, and we expect that to continue as the industry goes from strength to strength.

American Whiskey

From coast to coast, whiskey is made throughout America, in varying styles and expressions. From sweet rich Bourbons and spicy Rye releases, through to maple-filtered Tennessee bottlings, flavour is always to the fore.

Whether sipped straight or served up in a range of classic and contemporary cocktails, American Whiskey in the on trade has never been more popular, and the variety of labels available in the UK is at an all-time high. Stateside whiskeys all tend to have an underlying hint of sweet vanilla and toasty oak, although the use of different grains used in production result in a wide range of delicious core flavours.

Irish Whiskey

Widely claimed to be the first distillers in the British Isles, Irish whiskey enjoyed a period of popularity, before changing economies – and increasing pressure from their Scottish neighbours – proved too much to bear.

However, today the Emerald Isle is flourishing, with a steady stream of new distilleries opening their doors and putting the smooth, fruity expressions of their land back on the map. Tipped by many as one to watch, there is no doubt that Irish Whiskey is currently enjoying a renaissance and is increasingly becoming an on-trend choice of whiskey for aficionados and bartenders alike.

World Whiskey

Across the globe, a revolution is happening, with more and more whiskeys coming from lands lesser known amongst the trade.

From the intense heat of Australia to the exotic landscape of India - and a huge amount in between - craft distillers are setting up their stills and honing their craft. The result is a new wave of unique and distinguished expressions from a new band of exciting producers that are well worth further investigation.

Rum & Cachaça

A spirits category ready for a resurgence! Available in a variety of styles, from light white rums to sweeter spiced releases and weighty dark expressions, there is a rum in our range to suit every palate, occasion and customer. Golden and spiced rums are leading the charge, offering consumers something versatile which can form the base of great cocktails, and will work brilliantly with simple mixers - try a golden rum with coconut water or something spiced with grapefruit soda.

At the premium end of the market our range is continuing to grow, with the best bottlings offering an outstanding experience that is more accessible than equivalent whiskies and Cognacs. Flavoured rums present a different slant on classic drinks available with coffee, coconut and orange as popular options; and Cachaça is appearing on summer lists again, following a number of years with Rio at the forefront of the world's sports scene – lighter and more herbal in style, it is perfect for summer sipping!

Eau de vie is one of the oldest spirits in the world, developed over time using local produce such as grapes and fruits to create truly unique flavours. In the great divide that sometimes exists between lovers of wine and lovers of spirits, Cognacs, Armagnacs and Eaux de vie provide a bridge; a place where craftsmanship becomes artistry.

It is true that, like art, great brandies are exclusive – they are exceptionally expensive to produce – however the on trade is the weathervane of the off trade, and bartenders are confidently reaching for brandies of XO and beyond in their pours and their mixes. Brandies are being used both to discover brand new drinks, and to make a twist on a classic, with bartenders becoming more confident in recommending their favourite Cognacs and Armagnacs, drawing their customer into this private Narnia.

Bar trends have been centred on the speakeasy revival for some time now, and with it has come an astonishing interest in the aromatic and bitter cocktails of the Prohibition era. Beginning with the Martinez some years back, the unearthing and reinterpreting of very grown-up drinks has gone from a canter to a gallop, and that, coupled with the voracious appetite of bartenders for the new, the niche and the unusual, has led to a new respect for amaros and vermouths.

Not only are we seeing more bitter apéritifs being offered, but there is a thirst for long-dead labels to be revived and recipes recreated. We are also seeing smart operators using these products not just as ingredients, but as simple, fascinating, low-alcohol perfect-serve drinks. We say bravo! There really is a technicolour world to be found in these ancient concoctions. Similarly, liqueur producers are responding to new taste demands to bring more unusual flavours to chefs and bartenders alike. There is a keen interest in enhancing heritage brands with premium releases and a revival of some archived products, which we think will gather pace over the coming year. As always, authenticity of ingredients and production are high on the list of wants from our customers, and we are always keen to keep abreast of new offerings and ideas in this field and we offer a range of Cream and Non-Cream Liqueurs incorporating Limoncello, Amaro, Coffee and other flavours to entice and excite your customers.

Vermouth

- 98 Dry Vermouth
- White Vermouth
- Rosé Vermouth
- 99 Red Vermouth

Initially hailing from across Europe, but now created across the globe, Vermouth is often based on traditional secret recipes, focused on aromatising wine with herbs and spices.

The Romans were among the first society to make vermouth, for extending the life of wines and altering the flavour for meals, dependent on the time of day. Nowadays there is a wealth of stylistic options available from Italy (Martini) to Germany (Belsazar) to Australia (Regal Rogue) and even Britain (Sacred). Fairly new to the category, Rosé Vermouth is starting to create a noise, attracting new drinkers to the category, in spritz serves or with tonic.

Currently, the number of adults in the UK who consume alcohol is at its lowest ebb since 2005. Over a third of 25-34 year olds say they are always influenced by how a product affects their health, and with the introduction of the sugar tax in April 2018, sugary and unhealthy drinks are rapidly falling out of fashion.

This market shift hasn't gone unnoticed, and myriad brands have responded with unique and buzz-worthy offerings to fill this widening gap. Our portfolio showcases the best in the market, covering all palates and occasions with some imbibing surprises too, carefully curated to ensure you have all you need to create and serve alcohol alternatives full of flavour, balance and complexity.

Low/No Alcohol

Although without a technical definition, low/no products and serves cover a wide range of products, with the best offering imagination, theatre and liquid satisfaction.

With on trade consumers prepared to pay for non-alcoholic alternatives, there are many opportunities for profitability within this new wave of premium brands, meaning GP doesn't need to take a hit as customers migrate to habitually drinking less.

From zero ABV distilled spirits through to low alcohol sparkling tea... and even kombucha our 2019 range has all bases covered and offers an abundance of surprises.

Times are a-changing for this diverse umbrella category with a whole host of new brands and styles of low/no products & serves now available

Gone are the days when the only alternative for abstainers was sugary soft drinks, mineral water or mocktails. Now non-drinkers have a huge wealth of options to choose from, in the form of sophisticated "adult" alternatives that carry all of the flavour and balance, but none (or little) of the alcohol, and have put the fun back in to not drinking.

Consumers seem to have an unquenchable thirst for Craft Beer, as it boasts double-digit year on year growth in the UK. The beer category has been reinvigorated with the influx of craft, attracting a younger, broader audience to what was once seen as an old-man archetype.

The rich, complex flavour profiles mean it is quickly gaining popularity as an occasion drink and food partner. It's not just for the pubs and bars; Michelin-starred restaurants are also taking note, curating beer lists with a point of difference and accentuated quality. Here at Enotria&Coe, we are embracing the artisanal side of the industry, bringing the inimitable taste of some of the UK's top brewing talent to the masses. Our carefully curated range covers the best from all corners of the category, with a variety of styles, price points and producers, to ensure every consumer is catered for.

Craft Beers

Here at E&C we have for the first time curated our very own

CRAFT SELECTION

covering a range of styles,
price points and producers,

REPRESENTING SOME OF THE VERY BEST

of what the category has to offer

Similar to gin, consumers are showing an unquenchable thirst for experimenting with new brands and styles, driven by an increased on-trade presence of all things craft

Craft continues to outperform beer and grow the total beer category, whilst boasting double digit year on year growth in the UK and an increasing market share

Brushing off the stereotype image of an older male demographic, beer has regained its mojo

through craft & attracted a younger, brighter, broader audience to the overall beer category

Pale Ale and IPA styles have up until now dominated the category, but a new wave of brewers are pioneering alternative styles such as Saison, Sours and flavoured variants.

Whilst international lager styles are still a staple UK ontrade classic, we are embracing the smaller, artisanal side of the industry with some of the UK's top brewing talent now in our portfolio

It's not just style and beer bars getting involved – chefs and Michelin star restaurants are now taking pride over their beer range, curating lists with a point of difference, accentuated quality and food matching compatibility.

Craft beer can also be an occasion drink, increasingly paired with complimentary food matches with complexities to be savoured like a good wine as a serious drinking partner of choice.

Mixers

Essential in any drinker's repertoire, mixers have the power to make or break a serve. As the spirit world evolves, so too do the mixers, offering increasingly contemporary styles to match the growing flavour profiles.

Fever-Tree have long been the forerunners, representing the first on the scene with innovative pairings to enhance and complement the burgeoning spirit offering. From the classic cola and lemonade to the delicate cucumber tonic, and even a whisky-specific mixer, we have all bases covered. We expect this category to continue to produce new styles and expressions as consumers get bolder and more experimental.
