Most ageing occurs in sherry butts (500 litres), with some 250 litre sherry hogsheads also used. Glenfarclas has 30 traditional dunnage houses, in each the barrels are stacked just 3 high to ensure an even maturation. Before bottling the barrels are married in vats in a ratio two-thirds first/second fill to one-third third/fourth fill casks. John Grant, the present Chairman of Glenfarclas says "We bottle at 46% simply because my grandfather preferred it this way. Natural colour Classic Speyside.
